Q.6 Would you agree or disagree with each of the following statements about reforming Britain's divorce laws?

Summary Table

Base: All respondents

		Statements
		Divorce should not be made too easy, so as to encourage couples to stay together	There should be a statutory cooling-off period before a divorce is finalised	Divorce should be made as quick and easy as possible in order to be as painless as possible	Either spouse should be able to divorce by making a simple declaration at a Registry Office that the marriage is over, even if the other spouse objects	Either spouse should be able to divorce by making a simple declaration online that the marriage is over, even if the other spouse objects	If a couple's marriage is in difficulties, it is usually better for their children for that couple to divorce than for their children to witness them disagreeing	The life chances of the children of divorced parents are no better or worse than the life chances of children whose parents do not divorce
